I. INTRODUCCIÓN

En la economía del conocimiento, se considera que éste es un factor clave para la innovación y la competitividad de las organizaciones. Por tanto, surge la necesidad de buscar mecanismos para su creación, transformación y transferencia. Estos procesos hacen parte de la denominada gestión del conocimiento. Enfoque que ha sido ampliamente estudiado en el campo investigativo y que es uno de los principales paradigmas de la gestión empresarial.

Así mismo, se ha empezado a estudiar la incidencia que tiene la gestión de conocimiento en el ámbito regional, a través de la interacción de los diferentes actores, públicos y privados, de un territorio.

En tal sentido, este artículo proporciona una revisión de la literatura para resaltar la importancia de la gestión del conocimiento tanto en el ámbito organizacional como regional. La revisión de la literatura incluyó una búsqueda de bases de datos electrónicas y revistas en línea. La búsqueda se hizo por tema, es decir que los resultados arrojaron aquellos documentos que contuvieran la búsqueda en el título, el resumen o las palabras clave del artículo. El filtro se realizó de acuerdo con las categorías de las bases de datos, las áreas de investigación y títulos de fuentes. Todas estas categorías, relacionadas con las áreas de gestión de negocios y planeación del desarrollo.
